Some software programs require additional activation of components such as codecs, for instance, to be able to use specific formats. Sometimes a free one-off activation is necessary for certain special program functions (e.g. encoder). When you register your product this activation will happen automatically, all you need is an Internet connection. You can repeat the activation twice. Additional components can be activated online from directly within the program. The following video explains step-by-step how to activate the components. If you want to uninstall your software in order to use a more up-to-date version on your computer, use the following guide:Select the "Control Panel" sub-item in the start menu.Click on the "Program" sub-item and select "Uninstall program".Now select the relevant program and click on Uninstall.Note: In Windows 8 you will find the system control via the search function in apps. Some add-on programs are either automatically or optionally installed in addition to your MAGIX program. These must be separately selected and removed when uninstalling. Please note that these add-on programs can be used by several MAGIX programs simultaneously. If you have installed more than one MAGIX program on your PC, removing an add-on program may restrict the functionality of other MAGIX programs. For this reason, certain program components will not be automatically uninstalled. You can find a detailed overview here. We are available to help you use your MAGIX products.
