In April, a group of Cuban exiles trained in the CIA landed in the Bay of Pigs on the southern coast of Cuba with the aim of overthrowing the Fidel Castro regime and establishing an anti-communist government. Changes in the CIA after the Pig Bay included a format update for the president's daily intelligence report. See the current/central intelligence newsletter collection Aquiline Aquiline adj. January 2-30 June 1961 The new Kennedy administration faced a full range of international problems in 1961. He begins to welcome the Central Intelligence Agency Law on Freedom of Information. These articles represent much of the short-term analysis of the event agency that develops in Central and Eastern Europe as a popular opposition to the Soviet concentration exploded and quickly exceeded anything that the communist regimes were prepared to understand or what they could respond to. 1 The CIA did not start using the Beijing and Hangzhou non-Romanization spelling until 1979. The reports of the year were dominated by the worsening crisis in the Congo, with the fragmentation of the country that is expanding despite the efforts of theUnited and the concern of the United States due to the high tempo of Soviet tests of space vehicles and intercontinental Ballet missiles. The constantly evolving research of the CIA led to the concept of vehicle development unmanned (UAV) as a collection platforms. The central intelligence newsletter continued to be produced as a separate publication until January 10, 1974, when it was replaced by the National Intelligence Daily. The intelligence collection platforms have played a fundamental role in the national security of the United States from the first beginnings of aviation. The new version, called the current intelligence newsletter, began to occur on February 28, 1951, and this continued to be the format of the president's daily summary through the two terms of Dwight Eisenhower, although the newsletter retired of central intelligence in 1958.
